

Cody Bennet – Final Reflection

Narrator:

Hello!

My name is Cody Bennett. I am a white cis-gendered male. I am wearing a black mask. I have auburn hair, a red beard underneath the black mask and I have a black shirt. My background which is a virtual background are green northern lights and there's black trees, like a forest below it.

I wanna say thank you for all the time that you've taken to read this, experience it, watch the videos, go through it and learn. It's really important that we create these connections even if it's virtual. That's what matters.

That's what allows you to go from just making it to get eyes on the screen. It allows you to understand that we're doing this to create equal and equitable access so that everybody who has a right to experience this can.

Even if you're only affecting one person that's one more person who's now able to experience the world. And it's really unfortunate and it frustrates me a lot that the complete scope of this project wasn't accomplished.

We didn't get to hit the exact place we wanted to go because COVID-19 caused us to go into lockdown. We weren't able to do another podcast. While that's unfortunate we made a great first step and I hope that this inspires you to create more accessible content. To understand that any one of us can create access. We can make things equal, but we don't have to just make things equal. We have to make them beautiful too.

And with that I wanna say good-bye, thanks for watching!
